HE HEALED HER SOUL

First and Foremost I must say how truly grateful, and blessed I have been! I had a vision, of exactly how I desired everything to go, from how to write the songs, who I wanted to produce, exactly what to say and do to achieve All of this, how to break the news to David, that I was using his book as inspiration, even down to the last sentence on this page. I have spent countless nights on my knees, and countless mornings tossing and turning in bed thinking about the things that I need to do, until assuredly, I would rise from my bed very early to write down, Everything that had come into my mind while laying there...

Now as I consider all the many inspirations I have had, and the promptings that I have acted upon and pursued, I am moved to give much thanks and appreciation to those who helped me along my way, My Heavenly Father, Jesus Christ, The Holy Ghost, My Ever Loving Family. Each one was very patient with me, and showed continued support and guidance along the way.

Our life, is not about perfection, but progression.

It's about persistently, consciously pressing forward.

Eventually, David will learn that there is only one way to the light, and for that, he must rely on the help of the only One who can help him conquer the demons raging inside him. The journey back will be the hardest he's ever faced, and if he fails, both his life and his soul will be lost forever.
